ROTE SPOKES

Rotarians who attended the weekly meeting Monday were treated to an unusually fine bill of fare. With the meeting being ably lead by President C. R. Wing, things moved along smoothly through a chicken dinner and a concise report of the Barbecue from Jim Greep. It wasn't so smooth when L. A. gave his report on the Barbecue and rather took the Rotes to task for their conspicuous absence from said fele. This blast brought forth the usual fulsome assortment of alibis. Really boys, Rotary Fellowship should mean more to you than that.

We were most pleased to learn that Mr. Garner of the Calgary Power Co. will soon be joining our club. We look forward to the meeting initiating Mr. Garner into our august ranks.

For the Piece de Resistance, Orson Bingham gave us an unusually interesting and informative vocational talk. In the true Rotary spirit, not counting the loss of business to himself, Orson explained how we could keep our own dentures and avoid those dentist's bills. After those cokes and bars, rinse out your mouth my boy, rinse it out. Yes, and go easy on the sugar—What am I saying? Does someone want to hire an ex sugar tramp,

I feel like rambling this week, so—let us ramble.

Traveler

I asked a woman who had returned from a 6,000-mile journey by train if she had met any interesting men. She said a few men had spoken to her. As she told it, the men didn't seem especially exciting but to me the important fact was that in each instance they had picked up her dinner and bar checks.

This lead to the reflection that when a man is alone and wants the companionship of a lady at the cocktail hour or at dinner, he is stuck for the price of the drinks and the meal, whereas a woman makes a neat gain from these chance encounters in the lounge bar.

Women traveling alone or in pairs may sometimes wonder why so few eligible men respond to their obvious willingness to while away an hour or two in pleasant and witty conversation. Answering for one man, I find it too expensive.

This same woman was determined to see the inside of Mocambo's, the noted restaurant in Hollywood where the celebrities are supposed to dine. The doorman refused entrance to unescorted women. The strategy of this resourceful woman was to get into conversation with a man in the lounge of her hotel. She found they had a couple of mutual friends in the East. Boldly she confessed that her immediate ambition was to crash Mocambo's and for that privilege she was ready to stand all expense. Her new-found friend was agreeable and off they went. Once again chivalry was expensive. The bill was $18. The gentleman let the lady pay only her share.

Preparedness

We are indebted to the mother of a one-year-old for telling us how to batten down the house before turning a crawler loose. She proceeds as follows:

Ladies Auxiliary to Meet

There will be a Legion Ladies Auxiliary meeting at the Legion Hall on Monday, August 14. This meeting will be in the form of a social and all Auxiliary members are requested to be present and to bring a guest. The meeting is to commence at 8 p.m. and the lunch is free.

T. Geo. Wood left by plane Tuesday night on a business trip to Vancouver.

Family Reunion

Mrs. Emma R. Jacobs, her daughter Mrs. Mary J. Wilson with Mr. and Mrs. Ivar Sharpe, all of Sa't Lake City, have been visiting here in Southern Alberta recently. Mrs. Jacobs is the mother of the late Zebulon Jacobs of Cardston and the late Mrs. E. S. Heninger.

Mrs. Wilson is a member of the General Board of the Relief Society and with Mrs. Marianne Sharpe is visiting the various conventions.

While here a Jacobs family reunion was held at the Reservoir south of town.

A big bonfire, weiner roast and a variety of games were enjoyed. Community singing was lead by Mrs. Rojanea Bingham, a story was told by Mrs. Virginia Rolfsen and Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Heninger sang a duet followed by a solo by Whitney. Misses Elaine Heninger, Kay Rolfsen and Margaret Peterson sang solos and a duet was sung by Kay Rolfsen and Carol Bingham. E. S. Heninger and two grandsons, John Nalder and Kent Rolfsen got together for a trio and a duet was sung by Lyman Jacobs and Mrs. Mary Wilson.

Those attending were: Mrs. Dora Jacobs of Cardston, Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Heninger and Elaine from Lethbridge, Mr. and Mrs. Charlton Jacobs from Stirling, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Heninger, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Nalder and children, Mrs. Virginia Rolfsen and children, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Jacobs and children, Dr. and Mrs. Orson Bingham and children and Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Peterson of Welling and the guests of honor Mrs. Mary Wilson and Mrs. Emma Jacobs.

Allene Thompson recently returned from a holiday in Seattle, Vancouver, Victoria and Rossland, B.C.

Water Safety Director Here

On Tuesday, August 8, R. C. Bishop, the Provincial Director of Swimming and Water Safety for the Alberta Division of the Canadian Red Cross, visited here to test the pupils who have been taking swimming lessons and instructions from Gordon Cooper, the local Water Safety Instructor.

One of the highlights of the test was the Water Safety Knowledge in "True or False" form. While here Mr. Bishop pointed out that instructors try to develop not only a person who can swim but also one who is water wise, able to cope with any situation that may arise by the practical application of Water Safety.

The following are those successful in passing the tests. In the Junior class—Evelyn Sabey and Gregory Dahl. In the Intermediate class—Donald Attwood, Bill Hervey and Ross Harker and in the Senior class—Shirley Allen. Congratulations to you!

A Message for You

There will be no "Raymond Recorder" published next week 'cause we are going to take a rest. We haven't as yet decided where our week-long holiday will take us but after the beauties of the Logan Pass have been told of so often we think that will take up some of our time — most of it in fact. There is also the possibility that we will spend a couple of days just resting at home. That sounds mighty good to me, boy. At any rate we will be back to send the "Raymond Recorder" on its way to you on August 24th. We wish you all a very happy holiday.

Sincerely,

Max and Roxie.

A while ago a friend of ours brought this poem in for us to read. We thought you might enjoy reading what America's greatest living poet thinks of country hospitals.

The Little Country Hospital

The little country hospital is hidden out of view
And people seldom notice it as pleasure they pursue.
But let an accident befall — which is the fate of men
The proudest man is glad to see the small-town doctor then.
And in that little hospital which humble folks maintain
He'll find that hearts are merciful and quick to comfort pain.
It isn't like the city place, with sections blocked apart,
Where every patient's listed as a number on a chart
And specialists for this and that convene to thumb him o'er
And ask a thousand questions of the ill he's had before.

For in the country hospital, which lacks all pomp and style,
The surgeon on his morning rounds has time to chat a while.
And whether pain be in your groin, your stomach or your toe,
The cause of it the doctor there assuredly will know.
He will not shunt you 'round the place for rays of that and this,
He'll diagnose your case himself and very seldom miss.
And whoso'er shall tread the hall when you are free from pain
Will stop and speak a cheery word and wish you well again.

So little country hospital, which humble folks support,
Which struggles for existence, since its funds are always short,
I pay this simple tribute now to all your tender care
In lessening the hurts and pains which mortals have to bear.
And pray for God's rich blessing on the men and women brave
Who give their every ounce of strength another's life to save.

—Edgar A. Guest

Bonfire Party

On Monday evening a bonfire and weiner roast was held south of Magrath to honor all the M. I. A. officers and teachers of the Taylor Stake.

Following the games that started the evening off, a program with Earl Zemp, president of the Stake MIA, as Master of Ceremonies was held in the light of a huge campfire. Those participating were Mrs. Evelyn Melchin who sang a solo; L. B. Tanner from Magrath who also sang a solo; the Frank Taylor Quartette rendered two numbers; Ralph Walker spoke on the topic "Opportunity of Being a Mutual Officer"; Delbert Oler played a saxophone solo; Bishop H. Ririe of the Magrath First Ward gave some humorous remarks and a community singing song was lead by Mrs. LaVerne Anderson.

The large crowd was seated on the side of a hill with the performers and the fire on the downhill side so they were very easily seen and heard. All present had a wonderful time.

Miss Hazel Palm is employed at the Treasury Branch.

Old Friends Meet

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Tollestrup have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Ursenbach of Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Ursenbach and Mr. Tollestrup were High School companions a few years ago in Morgan, Utah.

Both of these men turned out to be writers of some note, Chris writing music and Mr. Ursenbach authoring such interesting books as "The Quest" which in my opinion is really a remarkable work.

Warning

The Fish and Game Assn. has made arrangements to have a block of land north of town set aside as a game preserve and will shortly stock it with 250 young pheasants. This should and will increase the pheasant population in our district in future years and warning is given that anyone found in this area with a gun will be prosecuted.

Mothers and Daughters

Tuesday evening the First Ward MIA held their annual "Mothers and Daughters" party at the Stake House. The Activity Counsellor, Mrs. Ruth Ackroyd, was in charge and conducted a most interesting program, as follows: Mrs. Zettella Taylor, President of the YWMA, told her most embarrassing moment followed by Mrs. Phoebe Dahl who told of her worst fright. Mrs. Eleanor Hudson gave several parodies to some of the popular songs and Mrs. Agnes-Nielsen told some jokes on some of the ladies present. Two skits were given by Misses Myrtle Judd, Lois Still, Lois Lybbert and Wynne Fisher. Mrs. Leah Robinson gave a reading in the Negro dialect and Mrs. Betty Evans gave a reading entitled "How We Celebrated Mother's Day". Cynthia Hague also gave a reading. Two numbers were presented by the "Singing Mothers". Carol Holmes and Della Paxman both sang solos and Mrs. Jesse Attwood presented a skit entitled "In the Art Gallery". Misses Bernice Dahl, Norma Dahl, Hazel Fairbanks and Colleen Mitchell represented the Stake Board with an orchestra number and Mrs. Neph Taylor gave a reading.

Presentations were made to the oldest and the youngest mother and also to the one with the most children. It was a grand party and everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Engagements Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Litchfield announce the engagement of their daughter Bernice to Kenneth B. Lyman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lyman of Los Angeles, California.

The marriage will take place in September at the Alberta Temple.

Bernice attended both Public and High School here and received her Normal training in Edmonton. For the past three years she has been attending the BYU from where she will receive her B.Sc. this year. While at the Y she has been teaching mathematics.

Mrs. June Allred announces the engagement of her daughter, Erma June to Mr. John Frank Schaalje, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schaalje of Lethbridge. The marriage will take place at the Stake House on September the fourth.

The Canadian Lions, though only a few thousand in number, made a very favorable showing at the recent International Convention. The American is considered a bit bombastic and rather a show-off by most Canadians and English. We, however, are too reserved in our endeavors. The Canadians rather surprised me at the Chicago show.

In the big lead-off parade that is one of the highlights of the Annual Convention, the Canadian in the Regina High School Band made a very good appearance, comparing very favorably with most of the States entries. The North-West red and green jackets were very flashy though few in number I might say. Ontario made a fair section of the parade all in special jacket uniforms.

This was Canada's big year in Lionism — the International President was Walter Fisher, an outstanding Canadian. We had nothing to fear and certainly did not feel in a back seat with Walt in the chair. He was one of the best of presidents and of course a fine man in his own right and in his own Ontario. Then Montana-Alberta, District 37, was running a Great rassing moment followed by Mrs. Phoebe Dahl who told of her worst fright. Mrs. Eleanor Hudson gave several parodies to some of the popular songs and Mrs. Agnes-Nielsen told some jokes on some of the ladies present. Two skits were given by Misses Myrtle Judd, Lois Still, Lois Lybbert and Wynne Fisher. Mrs. Leah Robinson gave a reading in the Negro dialect and Mrs. Betty Evans gave a reading entitled "How We Celebrated Mother's Day". Cynthia Hague also gave a reading. Two numbers were presented by the "Singing Mothers". Carol Holmes and Della Paxman both sang solos and Mrs. Jesse Attwood presented a skit entitled "In the Art Gallery". Misses Bernice Dahl, Norma Dahl, Hazel Fairbanks and Colleen Mitchell represented the Stake Board with an orchestra number and Mrs. Neph Taylor gave a reading.

All during the Convention dozens of Districts set up booths at the Chicago Stadium, advertising their clubs, their industries and their country — Canada was very successful in presenting our best for the information of all thirty-five thousand present.

Ontario's booth was appropriately decorated with maps, pictures and photographs specializing in tourist attractions for visitors. Walt Fisher's own district handed out little cups of delicious Byng cherries to everyone who passed, no matter how often you came by. Guess how many truck loads that would take. They had two very attractive girls in uniform handing out tourist maps and giving any information concerning travel in that province. They were regularly employed by the Ontario Travel Bureau and either could lure many visitors into Ontario.

Quebec Lions had a very quaint and characteristic little corner. Beautiful scenery and winter sports were pictured. Some cute little milk maids in Dutch (French) caps were handing crackers and cheese to all and sundry. A local grocery clerk might consider cutting up five hundred cheese' in a day.

Alberta-Montana featured sugar and the most showy pleasure resorts in America. Frot as much of the country that I saw they have the prettiest too.

The North-West Coast specialized their big pines and B.C. salmon. They passed out tickets and delivered a frozen salmon every hour.

I say again, the Convention was wonderful.

Miss June Anderson underwent an emergency appendix operation Wednesday morning. While she is away Mrs. Vivian King is substituting at the Coal Office.

Empty all the ash trays; shut the door leading to the basement; put the screen in front of the fireplace; put the lid down on the toilet; close the closet door; take away the remains of the dog's dinner; rack up current mail, newspapers and magazines and warn the other children to watch their step.

Our informant says it is wise to forget about electric light cords and sockets, shade cords and curtains, empty ash trays, coffee tables and all other standard household fixtures. It's easier to crawl around with the baby than overcome all these hazards, she says. She believes a mother who worries about them would be better off living with her crawler in a padded cell.

This mother believes all crawlers are entitled to free access to the kitchen cupboard containing the pots and pans. If they are determined to do damage they can accomplish it here with the least harm and the loud-est din.

Title
In the Saturday Review, Bennett Cerf tells of a conference in Brentano's New York store, some years ago, at which a poster to advertise a forthcoming book was being discussed. Since the book was a caustic summary of current follies in government, the proposed title was "The Great American Ass".

Mike Gross, the poster man, said he didn't like the title because he thought people would feel embarrassed asking for it. The Brentano executive laughed at him. Gross suggested a test, and a bright secretary was summoned from an adjoining room.

The title, in the form of a rough jacket sketch, was exhibited.
The girl studied the words for a long moment. Then she spoke up boldly.

"It isn't a bad title," she said finally said, "but I think it would be much better if that last word was changed to 'behind'."

The executive conceded defeat.

For Parents Only

By Nancy Cleaver

"Jean is such a tidy child! Her clothes are always neat as a pin. Her mother says she never has to pick up after her," said Mrs. Smith.

"I can't claim my Tommy is like that, but I never have to worry about him not watching the clock. Last school term the teacher says he was not late once," her friend replied.

Maybe girls are naturally tidier than boys while boys are more aware of time than girls. Perhaps it is a matter of temperament. But certainly neat and orderly habits are an asset to a young person starting out on his own.

Parents are reminded anew of the virtues of neatness and promptness with the beginning of a new school term. Teachers expect their scholars to arrive at school on time. Children are encouraged to present not only a clean, but tidy appearance.

Small boys may seem to be indifferent to standards of clothing or cleanliness; but even they don't want to be different from the rest of the gang. Most children hate to be conspicuous. They don't wish to attract adverse criticism from an adult in authority by being untidy or tardy.

A woman who has not struggled with bringing up a little child, particularly a small boy, may have little conception how hard it is to install these so called 'minor' virtues. It is true that there are exceptions. There are occasional youngsters who seem to be naturally neat and punctual by the time they have reached school age. But children are not born with good habits. They must be acquired. The process is often a slow one demanding a lot of patience.

A little child needs both help and encouragement in learning to be tidy. 'You pick up your blocks and I'll help you', or

'While you put your shoes in their place, I'll hang up your dress.'

Praise is a great help. Mothers scarcely pass a day when they must remind a son or daughter of a 'Neat Job'. At the same time an adolescent should be taking increasing responsibility for his personal appearance; his own room and being on time for his appointments.

Learning to tell the time on a clock often is useful to a child in training him in punctuality. Tiny tots have little sense of the passing of time. They live in the present. They are aware only of what one writer called, 'the lovely now'.

Dawdling often annoys a mother, but it is usually a passing phase. A gentle warning that play is going to be interrupted soon:

"Dinner is nearly ready. I'll be calling you in before long," helps to prepare a child to leave his play and come in to his meals on time. 'Hurry' is a word which is frequently heard in many households. But if used too often it loses its effectiveness.

The school age child who day-dreams and just won't take responsibility for getting himself to school in good time may have to learn the 'hard way'. One or two unpleasant experiences in being late will teach him to be punctual much faster than mother's nagging!

There are some people who have made a fine contribution to the world who have been neither neat or punctual. There are some houses which are kept so extremely tidy by a diligent housewife that neither husband nor children find it very much fun to be at home. There have been charming men and women who seem to have been born with no 'time sense'. Parents do know that this is all true, yet by example and training for the sake of the child's efficiency and happiness in the adult world, they want him to achieve as great a degree of neatness and punctuality as is possible for his temperament.

Artery of Civilization

PRINTING

This is a reprint article taken from the CIL Oval written by L. C. Hazelton

Printing really got into its stride directly after World War I. Color printing came into demand. Different styles and colors of paper were introduced by paper manufacturers. Up-to-date presses produced finer printing at greatly increased speeds, and ink manufacturers were quick to supply the necessary inks.

During this period of growth chemistry has played an important role, contributing particularly to speed and mass production in the printing shop.

Through improvements in the quality of photographic film, chemistry has abbreviated photo-engraving processes, where the use of film now mostly replaces the old wet-plate system. The photo-engraver uses zinc, copper and magnesium for his plates, glass for embossing dies—metal refined by chemical processes, as are the thin aluminum plates sometimes favored by off-set printers for long runs of two million or more.

Outworm Control for 1951

Believe it or not, there are over 200 kinds of cutworms in Western Canada. Fortunately, only two of them are serious pests of grain crops. Control measures for one of these—the Pale Western Cutworm—are discussed here.

Cutworm Outbreaks. Dry Springs are favourable for the Pale Western Cutworm. Many areas of Western Canada experienced dry Springs in 1949 and 1950 and may be confronted with a serious outbreak of this pest in 1951.

Control Measures. Owing to its underground feeding habits, the application of chemicals (baits, sprays or dusts) for the control of the Pale Western Cutworm has little, if any, value. Furthermore, no seed or soil treatment has been found which is economically effective. Consequently, the use of suitable cultural practices is the only means of controlling this pest.

Preventing Infestations. Unfortunately, nothing practical can be done to reduce damage in a field that is heavily infested, once the crop is above ground. There are two cultural practices, however, which will prevent the Pale Western Cutworm from seriously infesting fields in 1951, but both must be used immediately. These are: (1) the thorough cultivation of summer-fallow fields during July to destroy weeds and (2) the stopping of all work on summerfallow fields by August 1st and leaving them undisturbed until mid-September. Since the cutworm moths lay their eggs only in loose earth, it is essential that the soil surface be allowed to become crusted throughout August and September. This is one practice that can be relied upon to reduce cutworm damage in 1951. Wherever possible, grain fields which were seriously damaged by cutworms this year should be summerfallowed in 1951.

For further cutworm control information see your Agricultural Representative, or write to your nearest Entomological Laboratory (Brandon, Saskatoon, Lethbridge).

Care in Harvesting Barley Pays

The quality of barley, particularly malting barley, grown in Western Canada is, to a very large extent, determined by the care and wisdom that is used in harvesting operations. There are still far too many western barley growers who fail to give this matter the attention it deserves.

Harvesting. Barley should not be cut until it is fully mature. The kernels should be firm and flinty hard. The harvest of barley before it has reached full maturity means a sacrifice of yield with no advantage in quality. Barley should either be windrowed (swathed), or cut with a binder and carefully stooked, before serious "necking" takes place resulting in loss of heads. In the case of light stands of barley, however, straight combining is recommended.

Threshing. No grain crop calls for more care in threshing than does malting barley. An otherwise first class crop of malting barley can be easily ruined by careless threshing. The malting trade strongly objects to a sample of barley that contains even a few kernels that are peeled (skinned), cracked or broken. Almost all of the peeling and breaking of barley kernels can be prevented by properly adjusting the combine or threshing machine. Here are some of the main reasons why barley kernels are damaged in threshing: (1) Too high cylinder speed. (2) End play in cylinder. (3) Concaves with too many teeth and set too close to the cylinder. (4) Too little wind, particularly on front sieve. (5) The use of dirty sieves which allow too heavy a return to the cylinder. Remember, the problem with barley is more in separation than in threshing. Whatever else, avoid close threshing of barley. If you want to obtain the best price for your barley—thresh it carefully.

For further information on grain harvesting problems consult your Agricultural Representative, or write to your University or nearest Dominion Experimental Station.

Rich in so many other resources the Canadian West is blessed with a bountiful crop of wild fruits. Fun for the entire family are berry-picking excursions, picnics and other outings that reach their fulfillment in row upon row of preserved wild fruits on pantry shelves. Take advantage of the wild fruits as they come in season. And be assured of perfect preserving results by using pure, sparkling Alberta sugar. Look for the maple leaf on the bag.
